LITERARY SOCIETY

The literary societies have been organized and have begun their work. We are lucky to have three such societies in our school. Their names are: Wilson literary society, Lee literary and Roosevelt literary society.

These societies very frequently challenge each other for debate.

On Friday November 8, the Wilson and Roosevelt societies will debate the following subject:

"Resolved: That Italy is justified in invading Ethiopia."

The Wilson society will uphold the affirmative side, with Miss Carolyn Moses and Mr. Marvin Godsey as their speakers.

The Roosevelt society will uphold the negative side of the question with Miss Vernell Page and Mr. Wiley Richardson as their speakers.

This most interesting subject will be debated in the auditorium. Visitors are invited.

Red Fife Wheat Brought to Ontario From Europe

The progress of wheat northward almost to the Arctic Circle, has been described as beginning in 1841, when David Fife, an Ontario farmer, asked a friend to send him some wheat from northern Europe. The friend got a handful of grain from a ship lying at Glasgow from Danzig, says a writer in the Washington Star. Fife planted the seeds in his garden, but only five came up, two of which were eaten by a cow. From the three remaining plants came the so-called Red Fife wheat which proved so adapted to the climate of Canada and the northern United States that in the course of a half century it had spread over the greater part of the country.

This, in turn, was the foundation of the still more productive marquis wheat, which is credited with playing a major part in the allied victory in the World war. But with the expansion of Canadian agriculture northward, came the development of still another wheat, the garnet, which ripens from 10 days to two weeks earlier than marquis and can be grown almost up to the Arctic circle. The problem is to get wheat from the far north of as good quality as that grown farther south. One of the great wheat countries of the world is the Peace river district, north of Edmonton.

Lime Needs Time

On soil needing lime, alfalfa often fails if seeded before the lime has had time to correct the acidity. It is advisable to delay seeding until several months after the limestone has been disked into the surface soil. Some soils are slightly acid on the surface of one ton requirement) but have an abundance of lime in the subsoil. Alfalfa grows well on such soils after the roots reach the subsoil. Seedings made on such soils immediately after liming are often successful. Also, if the soil is well supplied with manured recently, seedings grow vigorously and may reach the calcareous subsoil.—Williams' Farmer.

Indians as Corn Growers

The American Indians learned through trial and error how to grow corn under adverse weather conditions. In cold regions they planted several days to the short growing season by sprouting the seed before planting. Records indicate that the ability of Indians to grow corn 300 years ago in semi-arid regions of the upper Missouri valley in an area now considered unfavorable to corn production was unsurpassed by any other tribe in America.

Beavers Get Jobs Building Dams

Thousands of beavers are now being trapped in the Northwest, through the co-operation of the United States forest service, United States biological survey, and the state police. The beavers, which farmers say dike up their irrigating canals, destroy fruit trees, and cause general havoc, are being transplanted to their more natural surroundings in the national forests. Here they are expected to work at their tasks of building dams in streams, which will stop erosion and increase pasture land. The photograph shown beavers caught in wire traps that do not injure them.

BANKS PLAN ADVERTISING

Substantia; funds have been set aside from reserves of the American Bankers Association to finance the development by its Advertising Department of a service of informative newspaper advertisements setting forth in brief, popular language the methods and policies under which banks operate, their effective practices for protecting their depositors' funds, the services they render and the various ways in which they cooperate with business in their own communities in fostering sound recovery and progress.

Some 250 banks are now using this material and it is available at a moderate price for all of the members in the association who care to use it in bringing about better public understanding in their own communities regarding banking and its services. It has materially stimulated the use of newspaper advertising among banks.

Many favorable comments have been expressed regarding the informative and constructive character of its messages. It is issued in two sizes: the larger size is 3 columns wide by 10 inches deep, but in some instances subscribing banks have expanded this to occupy full pages in their local papers in order to obtain a more emphatic effect. Four pieces of advertising copy are supplied each month in this service.

BANKERS SUPPORT ACTIVE AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association is promoting widely among bankers the practice of aiding their farm customers in installing on their farms better financial, accounting and operating methods. It also cooperates in the endeavors of the state bankers' associations along similar lines.

The commission has published a book on "Making Farm Investments Safe," presenting a compendium of helpful material published over a period of years as a reference guide in the daily routine of banking and farming relationships. It has also published the Victorians. In 1902, when the prince of Wales rendered his engagement ring to Princess Alexandra of Denmark, it was set with stones whose initial letters spelled "Bertie," the prince's pet name. There was no gem beginning with the letter I, but the court jewelers substituted the jacinth.

Masons and Presidents

Presidents Washington, Jackson, Polk, Fillmore, Buchanan, Johnson, Garfield, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Harding, Franklin Roosevelt were Masons. Filmore is thought by some writers to have been initiated into the order at an early age but to have remained during the anti-Masonic agitation. Claims of Masonic membership have been made for other Presidents, including Jefferson, John Adams, J. Q. Adams, Monroe, Tyler, Pierce, Lincoln and Grant, but without proof. In addition to these, Madison, Van Buren, W. H. Harrison, Tayler, Hayes Arthur, Cleveland, B. Harrison, Wilson, Coolidge and Hoover were non-Masons

Endearing Terms in Stones

The favorite engagement ring of the Nineteenth century was set with gems whose intial letters formed a word of endearment such as "dearest" made up of diamonds, emeralds, amethysts, rubies, sapphires and turquoises. The idea of a sentimental significance conveyed by the stones of a betrothal ring especially appealed to the Victorians. In 1902, when the prince of Wales rendered his engagement ring to Princess Alexandra of Denmark, it was set with stones whose initial letters spelled "Bertie," the prince's pet name. There was no gem beginning with the letter I, but the court jewelers substituted the jacinth.

Dark fired tobacco, markets swung open this week throughout the historic belt, and opening prices left many smiles of satisfaction on the faces of the farmers and the public alike.

With some very good quality leaf being offered on the opening day Tuesday the price soared to an average of more than 14c per pound. That represented the most that dark tobacco has brought since the depression started.

Yesterday was a day of bad weather and the average quality of the leaf was off causing the price to drop to around 11 cents although one warehouse had a 14 cent price average yesterday.

Sales were blocked on most of the floors. Only a handful of farmers declined to take the price offered by the buyers.

The announced average in Lynchburg Wednesday was 11.80.

With the first rush over it is believed that from now on the wars houses will be able to handys all the brought in without blocks.

With the opening of the marts for dark tobacco a general upturn in business throughout the belt is expected.
